A day not like any other

"The day started like any other day, wake up, make coffee and roll into work," said Malone "Bubba" Smith, 301st Fighter Wing anti-terrorism officer. Sept. 11, 2001 would quickly change from a normal day to one that will never be forgotten. Soon plans formulated by terrorists would shatter the normalcy of the day. Read more

Shock waves of suicide

Shock waves produce violent changes. That's what suicide does. "It's usually devastating to all concerned -- family, friends and coworkers," said Maj. Jose Jasso, the 301st Fighter Wing suicide prevention program manager. Read more
